Widespread rainfall produced by tropical system Earl has alleviated drought conditions. Many areas of the state received over four inches of rain last week during the passage of tropical system Earl, according to state climatologist Dr. Michael Helfert with the S.C. Department of Natural Resources (SCDNR). The statewide average for the event was 3.50 inches (see Rainfall Summary Table). The SCDNR had earlier downgraded the moderate declaration for all counties except Aiken, Allendale, Bamberg, Barnwell, Edgefield, Hampton, Jasper, Orangeburg, and Saluda. This announcement lifts the moderate declaration for the above listed nine counties as well as the incipient declaration statewide. The SCDNR's Land, Water & Conservation Division will continue to monitor state water supplies and assess the potential for a dry winter and early spring.
